Only Indian whisky brand to score above 90 points at IWC 2026.

This latest recognition adds to Indri's growing legacy of triumphs at the world's most prestigious whisky competitions, where it has consistently competed alongside—and outperformed—many of the finest names in global whisky.

For Piccadily, however, these victories represent far more than medals. They reflect a long-term commitment to redefining what India stands for in the world of premium spirits.

For decades, India was rarely associated with luxury, craftsmanship or world-class whisky. Piccadily set out to challenge that perception by creating exceptional spirits with uncompromising quality at every stage.

From sourcing the finest ingredients and investing in world-class distillation systems to thoughtful cask selection, patient maturation and uncompromising quality standards, every decision has been guided by a single philosophy: the liquid comes first.

At Piccadily, craftsmanship is never compromised, shortcuts are never taken, and excellence is never negotiable. Every bottle reflects a relentless pursuit of quality, authenticity and transparency.

The company's vision extends beyond building award-winning brands. It is about creating an ecosystem where Indian spirits are recognised globally for luxury, integrity, innovation and craftsmanship.

Commenting on the achievement, Shalini Sharma, Head of Marketing, Piccadily Agro Industries Limited, said, "Every global recognition reinforces what we have believed from the very beginning—that India has the capability to produce spirits that stand alongside the very best in the world. Our ambition has never been merely to win awards; it has been to redefine the global perception of Indian spirits. We have invested relentlessly in quality, craftsmanship and authenticity because we believe extraordinary spirits can only come from uncompromising standards. These awards belong not just to Indri, but to every individual who believes India can lead the world's luxury spirits conversation through excellence."
